A SHORT HISTORY:

“Royal is my Race” reflects the MacGregor’s descent from the ancient Celtic royal family through the hereditary Abbots of Glendochart in the eighth century. In the 1300s Robert the Bruce granted much of traditional MacGregor lands to the Campbells who harried the Gregors and drove them into lawlessness. The name MacGregor was “altogidder abolished” by King James VI in 1603 so clan members had to renounce their name or suffer torture, enslavement or even death. The persecution of Clan Gregor finally ended in 1774 with the repeal of the proscription after 171 years. As so many had changed their name or joined other clans, the MacGregors have the largest numbers of name variations, septs, aliases and other clan connections. Clan Gregor was one of the first families to begin playing bagpipes, has one of the oldest clan societies and its most famous member is Rob Roy MacGregor.
